

22.03.26
ANOOPIK
EE24BTECH11203

29/2
HO

Set B

Indian Institute of Technology Hyderabad
LA 1020: Psychology of well being
February 27, 2026

Total Marks: 40

Time: 30 minutes

Section A: Select the answer that is most likely to be correct and write it in the column on the right. There is only one correct answer. (18 x 2M)

1. Events of everyday life are compared to extreme reference points. Thus everyday life events do not generate as much happiness as before, after an extremely positive event. This may be described as: (a) Contrast effect (c) Hedonic adaptation	(b) Nostalgia effect (d) Easterlin Paradox	a
2. Those who were diagnosed with a terminal illness in middle age reported a happier past. This may be described as: (a) Contrast effect (c) Hedonic adaptation	(b) Nostalgia effect (d) Easterlin Paradox	a
3. With regard to indicators of well-being in India, which of the following is the only subjective indicator of well-being? (a) Satisfaction with physical health (c) Literacy rate	(b) Gross Domestic Product (d) Number of children per household	a
4. Which of the following is not associated with the PERMA theory? (a) Relationships (c) Achievement	(b) Financial satisfaction (d) Positive emotions	b
5. Elder's (1974) famous study on Children of the Great Depression found that participants who remembered most hardship in their youth, reported their early years as less happy. They observed increment in happiness in later years, and described their middle age as most happy. This may be best explained through the: (a) Contrast effect (c) Habituation effect	(b) Hedonistic principle (d) Meaningfulness	a
6. Individuals can get accustomed to nearly anything, no matter how good or bad. This may be described as: (a) Contrast effect (c) Hedonic adaptation	(b) Nostalgia effect (d) Easterlin Paradox
7. All the terms mentioned below are used to refer to emotions. However, from a psychologist's standpoint, the best way to categorize emotions would be: (a) Good and bad emotions (c) Positive and negative emotions	(b) Functional and dysfunctional emotions (d) Clear and unclear emotions	b
8. The goal of psychology was to turn "neurotic misery into common unhappiness" - this reflects (a) The deficit based approach (c) The shift to the strengths-based approach	(b) Emodiversity (d) Finding meaning	a
9. Positive emotions provide opportunities for increased creativity and productivity - is suggested by: (a) Broaden and build theory (c) PERMA theory	(b) Authentic happiness theory (d) Habituation theory	a
10. The neurotransmitter _____ is most closely associated with feelings of well-being. Low levels of it may be associated with feelings of sadness, anxiety, and possibly depression. (a) Endorphin (c) Oxytocin	(b) Dopamine (d) Serotonin	d
11. Which of the following statements about Barbara Fredrickson's (2004) Broaden and Build theory, is incorrect : (a) Novel thoughts can lead to risky behaviour (b) Positive emotions can lead to novel thoughts and activities		a

(c) Novel thoughts and activities can lead to building resources such as social support and knowledge (d) More experience of positive emotions leads to an upward spiral of positive emotions
12. All of these are examples of eustress except _____ (a) Stress that does not lead to panic before an exam (b) Stress that can lead to some form of personal growth (c) Stress that discourages a student to appear for the exam (d) Stress that motivates a employee to complete her work on time	c ✓
13. "I would rather wake up feeling unhappy than wake up without meaning in my life" - This quote maybe cited as an example of: (a) Pleasant life (b) Engaged life (c) Flow (d) None of these	d ✓
14. When predicting about the impact of future events, people tend to focus too much on salient features of a single aspect. This is called: (a) Focalism (b) Emodiversity (c) Miswanting (d) Impact bias	d ✗
15. Which of these statements is correct about Easterlin paradox? (a) The rate of growth of income is proportional to the rate of growth of happiness over time (b) Income has no association with happiness in developing countries (c) The happiest countries are those with the highest GDP per capita (d) Relative comparisons and rising aspirations are some reasons behind Easterlin paradox	b ✗
16. You are engaged in reading the latest book by your favorite author. You are so deeply absorbed in the book that you could not hear your friend calling you from the next room. This is best described as: (a) Ice age brain (b) Flow (c) Positive selectivity bias (d) Impact bias	b ✓
17. Which of the following is the best example of Eudaimonia? (a) Skipping work to catch up on lost sleep (b) Spending the amount from a major lottery win on loved ones (c) Buying things that one does not need because they appear attractive Buying things that one does not need because they were on discount	b ✓
18. The example of a skilled hit man using his expertise to earn money would be described by Seligman as : (a) Life of engagement (b) Life of meaninglessness (c) Life of meaningfulness (d) Life of criminal activity	c ✗

Section B: Short answers

19. Mention one disadvantage of the Pollyanna principle (2) (3)

~~Becoming~~ Not becoming aware of potential threats.

Ex: Blindly trusting ~~people~~ people, will lead to blindly trust ^{complete} strangers.

20. Mention one benefit of emodiversity (2) (3)

Emodiversity is ~~exp~~ defined as ~~experiencing~~ experiencing a wide variety of emotions.

Emodiversity is linked to high - mental and physical health.

Ex: A person experiencing a wide range of emotions including +ve and -ve, will help them ~~in managing these emotions~~ ^{in managing these} emotions as well ~~in managing these~~ ^{in managing these} their mental well-being.